RS&A and Summit Imaging Relaunch as Solutech

New Brand Unites Industry Leaders To Deliver Certainty And Innovation In Medical Technology

PLANO, Texas (June 25, 2025) — RS&A and Summit Imaging, two of the most trusted independent service organizations in oncology and diagnostic imaging, today announced their relaunch under a unified brand: Solutech.

The rebrand to Solutech marks the next chapter for the companies, built on the foundations of RS&A (founded by Carl Hill and Kenneth Wolfe in 1995) and Summit Imaging (founded in 2006 by Larry Nguyen) combining over 49 years of experience. Solutech brings together their technical expertise, customer-first culture and shared mission to deliver faster, smarter and more dependable medical technology service and support.

The new name reflects this commitment. “Solutech” combines “Solu,” short for Solutionists—the responsive, cross-trained A-Team behind the brand—and “Tech,” representing deep technical innovation and industry leadership. Together, the name signals a forward-thinking company built to solve critical challenges and deliver certainty to healthcare providers across the care continuum.

“Our new brand is more than a name—it’s a declaration of who we are, what we stand for, and the team that makes it possible,” said Tim Krzyzanowski, president and CEO of Solutech. “At the heart of Solutech are our Solutionists—the dedicated, cross-trained experts who show up with urgency and precision every single day. We’re here to make our customers heroes, so the patients they serve can live their best lives. That means being faster, smarter and always ready. Solutech is built to deliver that promise—because our people are built for it.”

Solutionists are the frontline force of Solutech. These are highly trained engineers and elite problem-solvers with thousands of hours of experience in oncology and diagnostic imaging systems. Whether servicing LINACs or performing component-level repairs for ultrasound and mammography equipment, they respond with the urgency of EMTs and the precision of surgeons—restoring confidence, minimizing downtime and protecting the patients behind the machines.

The brand relaunch centers on a single purpose: to advance certainty for the frontline of patient care. In a healthcare environment where equipment uptime directly affects patient care, Solutech is built to be the independent partner health system engineers and technicians can count on—anytime, anywhere.

As part of the relaunch, Solutech is introducing a new campaign titled “We Are the Solutionists of Solutech.” The campaign highlights the team of Solutionists behind the brand who power the company and showcases the passion, skill and commitment that defines its unmatched speed and service culture. Available 24/7/365, Solutionists are cross trained across leading brands, providing the certainty clinicians need in the moments that matter most.

RS&A and Summit Imaging have long been recognized for their service excellence—RS&A in radiation oncology, and Summit Imaging in diagnostic ultrasound. As the two companies integrated operations and expanded reach, leadership identified an opportunity to create a unified brand that reflects the culture, capabilities and scale of the combined organization.

While the name has changed, Solutech’s service commitment is unwavering and grounded by its core values: trust and transparency, response with urgency, lead the way, be present and act as one unified team. Customers will continue to receive the same high standards of service and support they have relied on for decades.

Solutech will continue introducing updated digital platforms, internal tools and customer resources over the coming months. The company invites its clients, partners and the broader healthcare community to engage with the new brand and help shape the future of independent medical technology service.

The rebrand also includes a new visual identity, messaging platform and a redesigned website at www.thesolutech.com.
